THE WEATHER

Part cloudy with local thunder showers tonight and Friday. Not quite so warm Friday.

VOLUME XVI

THE CLEARFIELD PROGRESS, CLEARFIELD, PA., THURSDAY EVENING, JUNE 8, 1922.

NUMBER 133

HENRY FORD WILL STICK TO HIS JOB

Detroit, Mich., June 8.—Henry Ford is not a candidate for the Presidency. He would not turn his hand to obtain the nomination, according to close associates here. Ford, it is said, has but two interests outside of his automobile business, Muscle Shoals and his plan for the reformation of the existing prices for money. He is taking no interest in the various Senatorial contests throughout the country and has observed the result in Indiana and Iowa with only casual interest. Ford will never be a candidate for the Presidency or for any other public office if Mrs. Ford has anything to say about the matter, it was said by close friends of the Fords here today.

NEW YORK HOTELS WILL ASK HARDING TO DRY UP CITY

New York, June 8.—Ignoring Prohibition officials here, the New York Hotel Association of New York plans to intercede direct with President Harding to stop the brazen sale of liquor here and dry up the city. The hotel men claim that the liquor traffic in certain hotels and saloons is steadily increasing and that this is causing the legitimate and better class of hotels endless trouble in meeting competition.

BALLINGER, STORM CENTER OF TAFT REGIME, IS DEAD

Seattle, Wash., June 7.—Honor was paid here today to the memory of Richard A. Ballinger, 64, formerly secretary of the interior and a leading attorney of the northwest. Ballinger died at his home here last night after an illness of but two days duration. He served as secretary of the interior in the cabinet of President Taft and during that time was the center of the bitter "Pinchot-Ballinger" controversy over the development of Alaska and conservation policies.

LILLIAN RUSSELL LAID TO REST WITH MILITARY HONORS

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 8.—Lillian Russell Moore was laid to rest here today with all the honor due her high station in life. A detachment of marines led the funeral procession from the Moore Point Breeze home to Trinity Episcopal church. Rev. Edward S. Travis, Rector of Trinity church, officiated at the services and spoke touchingly of Miss Russell's success on the stage and of her exemplary conduct after she had retired to private life. A wreath sent by President and Mrs. Harding was placed on the casket while a firing squad of Post 231 American Legion boomed a salute.

Harvard's Attitude Toward Jews Subject of Discussion; Secretary Declines to Talk

Cambridge, Massachusetts, June 8.—The discussion as to whether Jews are to be barred from Harvard is going briskly on beneath the surface. The Secretary of the University declined to answer when asked whether Harvard would accept Jews on an equal footing with Gentiles when the new scheme of sifting applicants is put into effect. It is estimated there are between 300 and 500 Jews in Harvard and they are in the habit of capturing some of the highest honors and usually stand high in their classes.

They're Here—"Firewomen"!

Since the members of the Hillsdale (N. J.) volunteer fire force are commuters and away during the day, their wives have organized to battle daylight blazes. Two of the fire lassies, Edna Manahan and Assistant Chief "Buster" Wandell, are shown driving the truck. Inset, Chief "Ted" Boesche.

ELK BALL WILL BE HELD ON TUESDAY, JUNE TWENTIETH

The local lodge of the "Best People on Earth" more commonly known as the Elks is having the time of its life trying to get the ball for the ball game. They began to set dates and ran into the Firemen's doings. Then, there came another show and finally they picked on Tuesday, the 20th as the day best fitted to pull their ball. But alas, and a couple of aches! The printer was against them. In setting up the ad there was a mixup in the dates and we want to impress on you that the ball will come off in a genuine "Elk Way", and you know they know how to do things; on Tuesday, June 20th.

EFFORTS TO BRING COAL DISPUTE TO AN END IS FUTILE

Washington, June 7.—Efforts of the Government to bring operators and miners together with a view to settling the coal strike were disclosed for the first time by Secretary Hoover in a statement sent to the Senate in compliance with a resolution of inquiry introduced recently by Senator Walsh, Massachusetts. "Quite informally and repeatedly," Hoover's statement said, "suggestions on which the disputants might well confer and hope for a settlement have been made through the department of labor and this department or both but thus far these suggestions have been without result." The secretary prefaced his statement with the declaration that the efforts have been made despite his belief that "governmental agencies have no legal authority to terminate or interfere in the strike."

STUDENT PRIEST BITTEN BY MAD DOG, DIES IN AGONY

Philadelphia, Pa., June 8.—Frederick Manning, aged 24, of Trenton, N. J., died in intense agony at Bryn Mawr as the result of a dog bite which occurred on May 15th. Manning was a theological student at Villa Nova College. Doctors say that his death was the most distressing in the history of the institution in which he was being treated. Shortly before the end he became violent and it became necessary for several nurses and doctors to hold him in bed. The dog which bit Manning was not captured and is still at large.

Grove City Students Fail In Effort To Save Leslie's Life

Grove City, Pa., June 7.—Pleading with his college chums for "Air, air, more air", Edwin Leslie 20-year-old president of the sophomore class of Grove City College, died here today after fighting gamely against death for 46 1-2 hours during which time the spark of life was kept alive by fellow students who applied artificial respiration. Leslie, who received his fatal injury when he dived into a gymnasium swimming pool dislocating his neck, was conscious to the end. "It's too late, fellows; you can't do me any good now", he whispered to his chums who were operating the pulmotor. Five minutes before his lips were sealed in death his mother, Mrs. Margery Leslie, of Sharon, Pa., was at his bedside. Leslie's lips moved, but the dying message he sought to leave with his mother was not audible.

Tonight in the United Presbyterian church, filled to the doors with college students and townspeople, the Rev. W. G. Reagle, college chaplain spoke the last words in tribute to the youth. The casket containing Leslie's body was banked with floral offerings. Thirty students who worked in relays applying artificial respiration during Leslie's valiant battle against death served as honorary pallbearers. Following the church services the body was sent to Sharon for interment probably tomorrow.

ANDERSON—BELL

Yesterday, afternoon, in Trinity Methodist Church, the pastor, Rev. H. L. Jacobs, married with the ring ceremony Oscar Gustaf Anderson and Mildred Ann Bell, both of Grampian, Pa. They were accompanied by friends.

Spirit of Co-operation Shown Guarantees Flag Day Will Be Quite an Event Here Wednesday

Even before the suggestion was made in The Progress yesterday, the two groups planning celebration of Flag Day in Clearfield on Wednesday next had met together, and decided to join in a community celebration that would bring home to every citizen of this town as never before the significance of the American flag. Representatives of the organizations appealed to by the clergy of the town to plan a civic celebration, namely, the Rotary Club, the Commercial Club, the American Legion and Clearfield Community Service, had met, and agreed to co-operate with the B. P. O. E. in the recognition of Flag Day. Inasmuch as the Elks had already made considerable progress with their plans and as their movement is a national one to obtain fuller recognition for the day, it seemed fitting that the celebration in Clearfield should be made in co-operation with that organization.

The details of the plans for the day have not yet been worked out. They will include, however, an effort to have the American flag floating from every building in town and worn by every man, woman and child. In the evening there will be a band concert, with community singing of patriotic airs and an appropriate program in the Court House Square. The school children have been urged to meet at the High School at 7 o'clock to march to the square and will be given a special place during the exercises. Further details will appear in The Progress from time to time, but it is certain that every citizen of Clearfield will have an opportunity to show his patriotism and respect for his country's flag on June 14th, and it is hoped that everyone will keep the evening free for attendance at the community gathering to honor the flag.

Fear Eight Sailors On Steamer Near Russia Have Been Drowned

Washington, D. C., June 8.—Eight sailors from the U. S. S. New Brunswick are missing and are believed drowned near Amurly, Russia, according to a wireless message received today. The dispatch was dated June 6th and stated that eight men in a small boat were missing. They were last seen off Sandy Point Amurly, at 1:30 p. m. and that no trace of them could be found after a two day search. It is believed the boat capsized in a sudden squall.

Daugherty Declares The Steel Merger Will Be Closely Scrutinized

Washington, D. C., June 8.—If the Department of Justice finds that the Bethlehem Lackawanna steel merger tends to restrain competition action to prevent its consummation will be taken Attorney Daugherty said today. He said his investigation into the merger is nearly complete and that he will have his report ready in a few days.

WHISKEY THIEVES CUT WIRES AND ROB PITTSBURGH HOME

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 8.—Daring whiskey thieves terrorized residents in the North Highland Avenue district last night and escaped after looting a brick liquor vault in the residence of Hermann Roth. Telephone lines at the Roth residence and at all nearby residences were cut and the thieves fled with two automobile loads of spirituous and other high proof liquors. Roth, who put up a fight with the thieves, was made a prisoner for a time but later released.

FIREMEN'S EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETS

The Executive Committee of the Central District Volunteer Firemen's Association met in the Firemen's Hall in the Borough Building yesterday afternoon to map out plans for the coming district convention which is scheduled to be held in DuBois on Wednesday and Thursday August 30th and 17th. All members of the Executive Committee were present but one and reported that the firemen were looking forward with eager anticipation to their coming trip to DuBois.

Drs. L. R. Browne, P. L. Showers, F. D. Leopold and R. W. Livingstone motored to DuBois this morning to be in attendance at North-Western Dental Convention.

AGED NEGRO TO INHERIT THOUSANDS

Greenville, Texas, June 8.—A second hand Ford truck and the mending of a screen door that's a "leetle mite warped." These are the earthly ambitions of John Lindley, aged negro chef in the New Beckham Hotel, whose lawyers say is about to get a half million dollars from an oil property. Lindley says he is going ahead with his cooking despite his affluence, but he has had his eye on a used flivver for some time and he wants to do a little fixing up around the house. "I am going to take care of these boys, too," he said, indicating the grinning circle of waiters and bus boys surrounding him in the hotel kitchen. John's mother owned a valuable property in the Mexia oil district ever since slave days.

YOUNG FARMERS TO HAVE GREAT TIME AT STATE JUNE 12TH

A program bigger and better than that of previous years is being arranged for the Young Farmers who come to the Pennsylvania State College June 12-15. The aim is to bring together several hundred young people from all parts of the state who wish to become more efficient farmers.

Boys, other than those who are members of the judging teams are welcome. They will be permitted to participate in all the Young Farmers' Program and may enter the judging contest as individuals.

Sleeping quarters in the College dormitories will be provided without cost. Quarters in private homes will be available for a limited number of girls, at $1.00 per night. Meals can be secured at $1.00 per day. This must be paid by those attending, but arrangements for convenient and satisfactory places will be made by those in charge of the program.

Enrollment will begin Monday afternoon, June 12th. Monday evening there will be a big get together meeting. There will be an interesting program, including songs and yells, and each county delegation should, if possible, come with a good yell and song all ready to give.

There will be two days of concentrated instruction in subject matter, preparatory to the various judging contests. Members of the regular college staff will give the instructions to the various groups. A part of the time will be devoted to instruction in judging, in which the same animals, fowls, and material will be used in college student instruction judging work. There will be four groups: General livestock, Poultry, Dairy Cattle (only), and Farm Crops (corn and potatoes.)

Each study and judging group will meet separately and at the same hours. It will be impossible for a boy or girl to enroll in more than one division.

A part of each afternoon will be devoted to athletics and organized games in charge of specially qualified men. Part of the time will be spent in attending agricultural demonstrations or for specially conducted campus tours or trips over college farms.

Each one should come prepared to have a good time, as well as to do some real work. Following is a list of suggested things to bring along.

- Sweater and raincoat.
- Suit and shoes suitable for athletics.
- Ball, gloves, bats and mask.
- Tennis rackets and balls.
- Extra bed blankets.
- Face and bath towels.
- So ap, comb and brush and tooth brush.
- Camera.
- Note book and pencil.
- A check room will be operated for valuables and suitcases.

PACKED AUDITORIUM SEES ONE HUNDRED GRADUATE AT HIGH

Parents And Invited Guests See Wonderful And Inspiring Sight At 1922 Graduation.

PRETTY SCENES

The Commencement Exercises of Clearfield High School, which were held at the High School Auditorium last evening, was the magnet which attracted an overflow audience to the Temple of Learning.

The Class of 1922, composed of one hundred members, is the largest class ever graduated from Clearfield High. The one hundred eager faced young men and women about to say goodbye to "school days" made an inspiring sight as they were grouped about the stage, which was artistically decorated in the colors of the class.

The Salutatory address was delivered by Miss Hilma Connelly in a highly capable manner while Miss Helen Fallstick, proved to be a splendid Valedictorian. The program in full follows:

1. Invocation.
2. Salutatory Address Miss Hilma Connelly.
3. Oration—"The Relation of a Commercial Education to the Business World" Miss Hazel Boyce.
4. Music Senior Class.
5. Oration—"Ideals Through Literature" Miss Lenora Piper.
6. Valedictory Miss Helen Fallstick.
7. Music Senior Class.
8. Presentation of Diplomas Mr. A. D. Bigler, President of School Board.
9. Commencement Address Dr. Chas. Wm. Stoddart, Dean, School of Liberal Arts, State College, Penna.
10. Senior Class Song.
11. Benediction.

FOURTH ANNUAL FARMER'S WEEK TO BE BIG EVENT

A larger and more elaborate program has been arranged for the Annual Farmers' Week at State College which will be held this year on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, June 14th, 15th and 16th. The meetings will be somewhat similar to those last year, in that they will afford everyone an opportunity to join different groups piloted by an instructor, who will take these groups around and explain the different things regarding the demonstrations on the College farm.

The evening meetings on Wednesday and Thursday will also be very instructive, with an address by the Honorable Frederick Rasmussen on Wednesday evening and Dr. Thomas, President of the College, and Alexander Dunbar, President of the Pennsylvania Bankers' Association, for Thursday evening.

A special program has been arranged for the women, which will be found very entertaining as well as instructive.

Room and board can be obtained at the different Fraternity Houses and Dormitories for $2.50 per day. Reservations will be made for those who desire to have them, by writing to your county agent, W. C. Sterrett, Farm Bureau, Clearfield, Pa.

DETECTIVE BURNS PUT IN CHARGE OF "GAS" PRICE PROBE

Washington, D. C., June 8.—William J. Burns, Detective Agency, has been placed in personal charge of the gasoline price investigation, Attorney General Daugherty announced today. Burns already has received many reports from all parts of the country and an investigation will be made to determine whether a "gentleman's agreement" exists among the big oil companies to profit at the expense of the increasing demand.

my love story all spoiled, when I was getting along so beautifully with Mother and the violinist.

But I'm feeling better now. I've been thinking it over. I don't believe Mother's going to care so very much. I don't believe she'd want a man that would pretend to come courting her, when all the while he was really courting the hired girl—I mean maid. Besides, there's Mr. Easterbrook left (and one or two others that I haven't said much about, as I didn't think they had much chance.) And so far as the love story for the book is concerned, that isn't spoiled, after all, for it will be ever so much more exciting to have the violinist fall in love with Theresa than with Mother, for, of course, Theresa isn't in the same station of life at all, and that makes it a—mess—alliance. (I don't remember exactly what the word is; but I know it means an alliance that makes a mess of things because the lovers are not equal to each other.) Of course, for the folk who have to live it, it may not be so nice; but for my story here this makes it all the more romantic and thrilling. So that's all right.

Of course, so far, I'm the only one that knows, for I haven't told it. I'm the only one that's seen anything. Of course, I shall warn Mother, if I think it's necessary, so she'll understand it isn't her, but Theresa, that the violinist is really in love with and courting. She won't mind, I'm sure, after she thinks of it a minute. And won't it be a good joke on Aunt Hattie and Grandfather when they find out they've been fooled all the time, supposing it's Mother, and worrying about it?

Oh, I don't know! This is some love story, after all!

TWO DAYS LATER

What do you suppose has happened now? Why, that wretched violinist is nothing but a deep-dyed villain! Listen what he did. He proposed to Mother—actually proposed to her—and after all he'd said to that Theresa girl, about his being perfectly happy if he could marry her. And Mother—Mother all the time not knowing! Oh, I'm so glad I was there to rescue her! I don't mean at the proposal—I didn't hear that. But afterward.

It was like this:

They had been out automobiling—Mother and the violinist. I was in my favorite window-seat, reading, when they came home and walked into the library. They never looked my way at all, but just walked toward the fireplace. And there he took hold of both her hands and said:

"Why must you wait, darling? Why can't you give me my answer now, and make me the happiest man in all the world?"

"Yes, yes, I know," answered Mother; and I knew by her voice that she was all shaky and trembling. "But if I could only be sure—sure of myself."

"But, dearest, you're sure of me!" cried the violinist. "You know how I love you. You know you're the only woman I have ever loved, or ever could love!"

"Why Must You Wait, Darling?"

Yes, just like that he said it—that awful lie—and to my mother. My stars! Do you suppose I waited to hear any more? I guess not!

I fairly tumbled off my seat, and my book dropped with a bang, as I ran forward. Dear, dear, but how they did jump—both of them! And I guess they were surprised. I never thought how't was going to affect them—my breaking in like that. But I didn't wait—not a minute. I just started right in and began to talk. And I talked hard and fast, and lots of it.

I don't know now what I said, but I know I asked him what he meant by saying such an awful lie to my mother, when he'd just said the same thing, exactly, to Theresa, and he'd hugged her and kissed her, and everything. I'd seen him. And—

But I didn't get a chance to say half I wanted to. I was going on to tell him what I thought of him; but Mother guessed out, "Marie! Marie! Stop!"

And then I stopped. I had to, of course. Then she said that would do, and I might go to my room. And I went. And that's all I know about it, except that she came up, after a little, and said for me not to talk any more about it, to her, or to any one else; and to please try to forget it.

I tried to tell her what I'd seen, and what I'd heard that wicked, deep-dyed villain say; but she wouldn't let me. She shook her head, and said, "Hush, hush, dear"; and that no good could come of talking of it, and she wanted me to forget it. She was very sweet and very gentle, and she smiled, but there were stern corners to her mouth, even when the smile was there.

And I guess she told him what was what. Anyway, I know they had quite a talk before she came up to me, for I was watching at the window for him to go; and when he did go he looked very red and cross and he stalked away with a never-will-I-darken this door-again kind of step, just as far as I could see him.

I don't know, of course what will happen next, nor whether he'll ever come back for Theresa, but I shouldn't think even she would want him, after this, if she found out.

And now, where's my love story coming in, I should like to know?

TWO DAYS AFTER CHRISTMAS

Another wonderful thing has happened. I've had a letter from Father—from Father!—a letter—me!

It came this morning. Mother brought it to me. She looked queer—a little. There were two red spots in her cheeks, and her eyes were very bright.

"I think you have a letter here from—your father," she said, handing it out.

She hesitated before the "your father" just as she always does. And it isn't hardly ever that she mentions his name, anyway. But when she does she always stops a funny little minute before it, just as she did today.

I could see she was wondering what could be in it. But I guess she wasn't wondering any more than I was, only I was gladder to get it than she was. I suppose. Anyway, when she saw how glad I was, and how I jumped for the letter, she drew back, and looked somehow as if she'd been hurt, and said:

"I did not know, Marie, that a letter from—your father would mean so much to you."

I don't know what I did say to her.

I guess I didn't say anything. I'd all ready begun to read the letter, and I was in such a hurry to find out what he'd said.

I'll copy it here. It wasn't long. It was like this:

"My Dear Marie:

"Some way Christmas has made me think of you. I wish I had sent you some gift. Yet I have not the slightest idea what would please you. To tell the truth, I tried to find something—but had to give it up.

"I am wondering if you had a good time, and what you did. After all, I'm pretty sure you did have a good time, for you are Marie now. You see, I have not forgotten how tired you got of being—Marie. Well, well, I do not know as I can blame you.

"And now that I have asked what you did for Christmas, I suspect it is no more than a fair turnout to tell you what I did. I suppose I had a very good time. Your Aunt Jane says I did. I heard her telling one of the neighbors that last night. She had a very fine dinner, and she invited Mrs. Durling and Miss Snow and Miss Sanborn to eat it with us. She said she didn't want me to feel lonesome. But you can feel real lonesome in a crowd sometimes. Did you know that Marie?

"But I left them to their chatter after dinner and went out to the observatory. I think I must have fallen asleep on the couch there, for it was quite dark when I awoke. But I didn't mind that, for there were some observations I wanted to take. It was a beautiful clear night, so I stayed there till nearly morning.

"How about it? I suppose Marie plays the piano every day, now, doesn't she? The piano here hasn't been touched since you went away. Oh yes, it was touched once. Your aunt played hymns on it for a missionary meeting.

"Well, what did you do Christmas?

Suppose you write and tell

"Your Father."

I'd been reading the letter out loud, and when I got through Mother was pacing up and down the room. For a minute she didn't say anything; then she whirled round suddenly and faced me, and said, just as if something inside of her was making her say it:

"I notice that in—"

your mother in that letter, Marie. I suppose—your father has quite forgotten that there is such a person in the world as—I."

But I told her no, oh, no, and that I was sure he remembered her, for he used to ask me questions often about what she did, and the violinist and all.

"The violinist!" cried Mother, whirling around on me again. (She'd begun to walk up and down once more.) "You don't mean to say you ever told your father about him?"

"Oh, no, not everything," I explained, trying to show how patient I was, so she would be patient, too. (But it didn't work.) "I couldn't tell him everything because everything hadn't happened then. But I told about his being here, and about the others, too; but, of course, I said I didn't know which you'd take, and—"

"You told him you didn't know which I'd take!" gasped Mother.

Just like that she interrupted, and she looked so shocked. Then she began to walk again, up and down, up and down. Then, all of a sudden, she flung herself on the couch and began to cry and sob as if her heart would break. And when I tried to comfort her, I only seemed to make it worse, for she threw her arms around me and cried:

"Oh, my darling, my darling, don't you see how dreadful it is, how dreadful it is?"

And then is when she began to talk some more about being married, and unmarried as we were. She held me close again and began to sob and cry.

"Oh, my darling, don't you see how dreadful it is—how unnatural it is for you to live—this way? And for you—your poor child!—what could be worse for you? And here I am, jealous—jealous of your own father, for fear you'll love him better than you do me!"

"Oh, I know I ought not to say all this to you—I know I ought not to. But I can't help it. I want you! I want you every minute, but I have to give you up—six whole months of every year I have to give you up to him. And he's your father, Marie. And he's a good man. I know he's a good man. I know it all the better now since I've seen—other men. And I ought to tell you to love him. But I'm so afraid—I'm so afraid I'll love him better than you do me, and want to leave—me. And I can't give you up! I can't give you up!"

Then I tried to tell her, of course, that she wouldn't have to give me up, and that I loved her a whole lot better than I did Father. But even that didn't comfort her, 'cause she said I ought to love him. That he was lonesome and needed me. He needed me just as much as she needed me, and maybe more. And then she went on again about how unnatural and awful it was to live the way we were living. And she called herself a wicked woman that she'd ever allowed things to get to such a pass. And she said if she could only have her life to live over again she'd do so differently—oh so differently.

Then she began to cry again, and I couldn't do a thing with her; and of course, that worked me all up and I began to cry.

She stopped then, right off short and wiped her eyes fiercely with her wet bill of a handkerchief. And she

DRINK MORE SAFE MILK

And there's only one SAFE milk—that's pasteurized milk. The process through which the milk is put makes it as germ-free as any milk can possibly be and the nutrient is retained.

The baby will thrive on it, the growing girl or boy will get stronger, the grown-up will take on more health, and the person along in years will find it a food worth considering,—but be sure that it's pasteurized.

ODDS AND ENDS
AND THINGS

By J. D. C.

The coming recognition of the survivors of Clearfield's 1st fire company by the conferring of honorary membership in the fire department is both timely and proper.

The original company was organized in August of 1881, following the fire which destroyed the Shaw House then one of Clearfield County's leading, largest, and most modern hotels. These "old fellows" of today were the young, peppy fellows of that day and generation, who banded themselves together in the common interest and gave of their time and efforts to preserve the lives and property of the community. They made slight pretensions and were satisfied to work with crude tools, the best the town could give them then. Their mission was to save property from the fire fiend and they did it to the best of their abilities.

In that early day the volunteer fireman considered he was doing a public duty and took a pride in his work.

Following the organization of the old company, the fire laddies, badly under equipped toiled through mud to the boot-tops many times to get to and from fires and thought nothing of it. They had no motor driven apparatus on which to haul ten to twenty-five men at top speed to the fires but those "old fellows" were on hand at every fire, surmounting every one of the many difficulties confronting them.

They followed along through the years and were gradually succeeded by the other young men growing up in the community, who also worked hard with the "tools" provided by Council from time to time. The borough was struggling along, getting streets paved and making other improvements which required all the tax money that could be raised. The fire men accepted the meager support Council would give them from time to time and never once thought of dictating to the Borough Dads just what kind of machine or machines they should supply them with, but they did put the fires out.

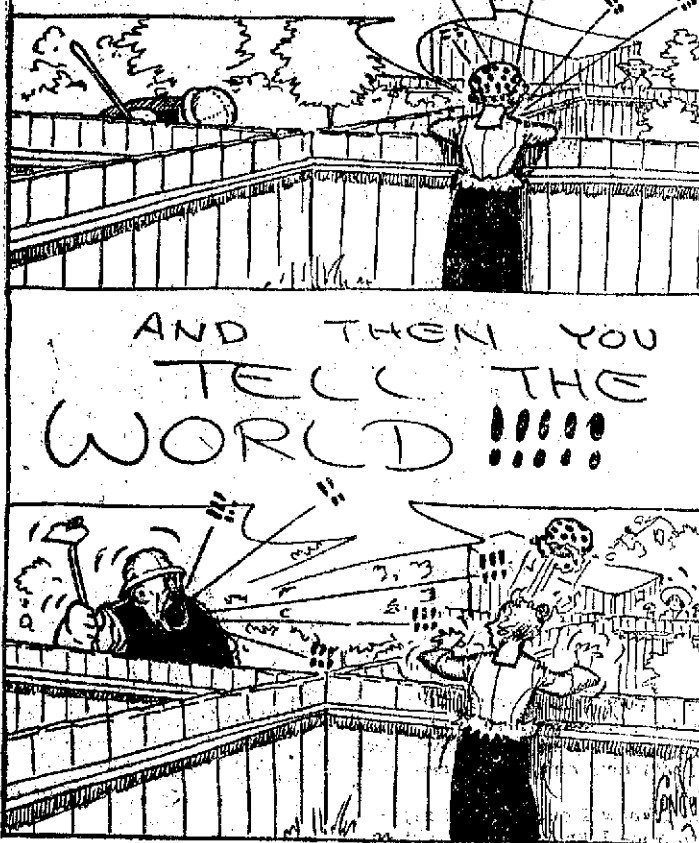

In fact, up to as late as ten years ago, the entire equipment of the Clearfield Fire Department consisted of a horse drawn hook and ladder wagon, a horse drawn steam pumper and three old two wheel hose reels, with a capacity of about 500 feet of hose, each. When they wanted additional equipment, the firemen on account of the conditions of Borough Finances staged a home talent show, raised $540, and bought for the use of each of three of the companies an additional two wheel hose reel.

But since that time and during the past ten years the Fire Department has been motorized, each of the four companies were supplied with a motor truck and since then it has been more of a pleasure than a task to combat fires in the community. In addition to the apparatus and other equipment, Council has supplied fine brick hose houses with handsome parlors or lounging rooms for our firemen. Times change, though, and people also—the fireman being no exception, and now, despite all we have—and no town our size anywhere in this section of the state is better equipped than the present day firemen—who also put the fires out—how long and loud for more equipment regardless of where the money is to come from and even take time out to tell the hard pressed Borough Solons just what they can buy or what they will use if purchased.

This is a queer world and even we volunteer firemen are queer people and sometimes kicking gets us some place and sometimes it don't. But all present day firemen should attend the conferring of honorary memberships on those "old timers" and get a first hand slant on what they had to contend with. It might help some just now.

"SPRINGTIME"

A great deal of interest is being shown by everyone in the coming presentation of "Springtime" at the Driggs Theatre on June 22 and 23, under the auspices of the Junior Woman's Club.

The director of the production Miss Person, who presents John P. Rogers Producing Company, is busy day and night rehearsing the cast of nearly 100 people, for the final presentation on the above dates.

"Springtime" is a sparkling comedy set to music, which has as its theme the plighted romance of a scion of 1888 aristocracy and the daughter of the founder of "Brewster's Pills" which is finally realized in the union of their grandchildren of 1920. The time involved in the unfolding of the story covers a period of 50 years.

NO. 1 BOYS BEAT NO. 2.

Clearfield Fire Company No. 1 put it all over their Second Ward Hose Company brethren in a series of five games of volley ball played on the grounds in rear of the Second Ward hose house last evening.

Volley ball is a new stunt in Clearfield, but the way the downtowners went to it showed they learn quickly and are entirely too frisky for the Reedsvillians.

The scores for the five games were:
No. 1 15 15 15 15 15
No. 2 7 3 1 7 3

Engineers Present Argument For Better Than A Living Wage

Rules for 'Just and Reasonable Wage'
We believe that it is fair to ask the question: What are locomotive engineers' services worth to society? The Transportation Act lays down seven
rules by which a "just and reasonable wage" shall be determined by the
United States Railroad Labor Board.
In brief they are:

1. Wages paid for similar work in other industries
2. Relation between wages and cost of living.
3. Hazards of employment.
4. Training and skill required.
5. Degree of responsibility.
6. Character and regularity of employment.
7. Inequalities of present wages or treatment, the result of previous wage adjustments.

Eleven Years Length of Engineer's Life

Obviously, there is no similar work in other industries with which the labor of a locomotive engineer can be compared; nor should any skilled worker be held down to a mere subsistence based on the bare cost of living. What then, are the hazards, the skill, and the responsibility exacted of engineers? We doubt if the public realizes the risks daily assumed by every engineman in active service. According to the mortality tables, based upon years of actual experience by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Insurance Department, the average duration of life of a railroad engineer is but 11 years and 7 days. No engineer knows when he steps into the engine cab whether through no fault of his, his life will be snuffed out before the end of the run. The safety appliances which railroad employees have secured only after prolonged struggle can reduce, but they cannot eliminate, the risks incurred by engine service employees.

Severe Tests Eliminate All But Few
The training, skill and physical perfection required of an engineer is such that the great majority of the engine wipers, hostlers and firemen, who spend years of labor preparing for the opportunity to grasp the throttle fall by the wayside in the thorough elimination of the less fit. Even after rejecting all who cannot measure up to the strictest tests for height, perfect vision, heart action, blood pressure, etc., seventeen per cent of the firemen who aspire to become engineers are rejected at the end of three years because their eyesight becomes impaired by the fierce glare of a grate of coal throwing off 2500 degrees of heat. In addition 76% do not exhibit the temperature and natural ability required of an engineer, so that only 17 out of every 100 candidates ever win a place on the right side on the cab. Even after this rigorous process of the selection of the most fit only six out of every 100 get places in passenger service. In brief the length of training and skill required to become a successful engineer is no less than that demanded of a competent dentist or an able lawyer.

Engineer's Responsibility Exceeds Doctor's

It is an axiom of social justice that the payment received for any service should depend in part upon the responsibility involved. The skilled surgeon is certainly entitled to a greater compensation than the woman who mops up the hospital floors. In no other profession in the world not even excepting the medical profession, is a man entrusted with greater responsibility for the lives of his fellow-men than is the engineer in the locomotive cab. How well he discharges this obligation is indicated in the report of the Interstate Commerce Commission for 1921 which shows that fatalities on the American railroads are less than for the past 22 years, 16,239,774 passengers being carried to one killed. Whenever a wreck does occur it is the men who run the trains and not the passengers who usually pay the price. Indeed, the scrupulous carefulness of engine and train service employees is such that one important transportation line carrying 50,000,000 persons a year has not fatally injured one person in four years.

There are 34 times as many people killed by automobiles in the United States, according to the 1920 census, as there are passengers killed on the railroads. The law recognizes the great responsibility for human life entrusted to the engineer, and holds him strictly accountable for its exercise. There is a grim truth in the jest that if a doctor makes a mistake he buries it, but if an engineer makes a mistake he goes to jail for it. Train service employees are obliged to perform their work with a diligence which precludes the possibility of carelessness or negligence.

An engineer is not only responsible for the lives placed in his care but also for the millions of dollars worth of property which he handles every month of his service. President M. C. Byrd of the Western Maryland Railroad recently said: "An engineer running a train with 100 coal cars virtually has $500,000 worth of property in his care and for this reason if no other, the members of the Brotherhoods should have comparatively high wages."

Low Wages Will Demoralize Transportation System

If the American people permit the wage of the railway employees to be beaten down in order to pay dividends on railway stocks, which have been notoriously watered, the people themselves will be the losers. Railroad service demands an exceptionally high degree of skill, carefulness and responsibility. Wages paid in this service must be sufficient to secure the very best human material. Low wages will inevitably demoralize our transportation system. The actual figures presented by the Railroad Labor Board prove that even the most skilled railway employees are not overpaid and that many of them are receiving less than the clerks in a dry goods store. Finally, the railroads themselves would profit if they would devote less effort to beating down wages to the lowest possible level and a little more effort to cultivate the good will of their employees.

MRS. PETER GRAFFIUS

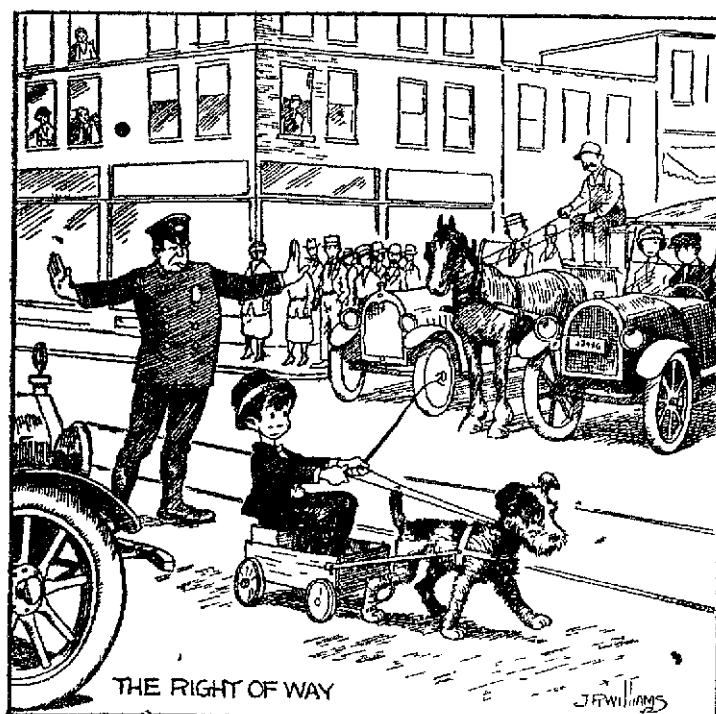

Mrs. Peter Graffius died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. E. Williams on May 22, 1922. Death resulting from complications from which she had suffered for years. She was aged 76 years, 7 months and 26 days. She was married in 1863, her husband preceding her to the grave 22 years ago. She is survived by five children as follows: Mrs. C. F. Graham, Mrs. T. H. Mannes and Herman L. of Shiloh; Mrs. C. E. Williams and Mrs. J. S. Owens of Bigler. Two children having died years ago.

Ear hath not heard, eye hath not seen,
The glories of that home of song,
Though stormy billows roll between,
I go to join the angel throng,
But of the joys beyond the tide,
The welcomes on that golden strand,
The best shall be from Him who died
To bring us to that shining land.

GIVES STOMACH REMEDY TO FELLOW SUFFERERS

Mrs. Smithy, Columbus, O., Gives Her
Friends Quick Stomach Relief with
Jaques' Little Wonder Capsules

The best proof of the value of any remedy is the readiness with which those who are helped by it recommend it to their friends. Those who have suffered the pangs and tortures of indigestion and dyspepsia are quick to acknowledge the prompt relief given by a brief use of Jaques' Little Wonder Capsules for indigestion, dyspepsia and constipation. They are so grateful for the relief they have obtained they not only recommend this valuable stomach treatment, but in many instances buy the capsules to give to fellow sufferers. This is the case with Mrs. G. G. Smithy, 823 N. 11th St., Columbus, O., who writes: "Please find enclosed stamps for which send me two boxes Jaques' Little Wonder Capsules. I used them last summer in Plattburg and they gave me such relief." A few days later Mrs. Smithy wrote again: "Received the two boxes of your capsules and as I have several friends here who are bothered with their stomachs I have given almost all my capsules away for them to try; so send me two more boxes for which you will find stamps enclosed. Please send at once as I do not want to get out of them."

Jaques' Little Wonder Capsules relieve indigestion, dyspepsia, flatulence, catarrh of the stomach, acid stomach, biliousness, heartburn and heaviness and dizziness after eating. They are easy to take. Simply place one in your mouth and take a swallow of water. Jaques' Little Wonder Capsules are made of pure gelatin which promptly dissolves upon reaching the stomach, freeing the contents to do their work in restoring the digestive organs to normal.

PRECISION plays an important part in the manufacture of the Special-Six. It is largely responsible for the dependable service that has singled out the Special-Six as an incomparable value.

Six hundred and eighty inspectors safeguard precision in the Studebaker factories. They literally inspect every part that goes into every car—and every operation on every part. Before cars are passed for delivery 9,500 inspections are made.

In the Special-Six there are 1,120 mechanical operations to the accuracy of one-thousandth of an inch, 360 to one-half-thousandth.

As to the car's performance, a brief experience will reveal its superiority far more convincingly than we could tell it.

Studebaker cars make friends quickly, because they give most for the money. And they invariably keep these friends, because of the universal satisfaction they give in fine performance, economy and service.

Hide and Vanity.

I would much rather fight pride than vanity, because pride has a standing way of hiding. You know where it is. It thrusts its black shroud of conceit over the face of a man, and he is at a loss where to strike. The vanity, on the other hand, is in the open. It is a lustre, a tinsel, a glitter, and it is a temptation to the eye. It is a temptation to the eye, and it is a temptation to the heart. It is a temptation to the heart, and it is a temptation to the soul. It is a temptation to the soul, and it is a temptation to the body. It is a temptation to the body, and it is a temptation to the mind. It is a temptation to the mind, and it is a temptation to the spirit. It is a temptation to the spirit, and it is a temptation to the flesh. It is a temptation to the flesh, and it is a temptation to the blood. It is a temptation to the blood, and it is a temptation to the marrow. It is a temptation to the marrow, and it is a temptation to the bone. It is a temptation to the bone, and it is a temptation to the sinew. It is a temptation to the sinew, and it is a temptation to the muscle. It is a temptation to the muscle, and it is a temptation to the nerve. It is a temptation to the nerve, and it is a temptation to the brain. It is a temptation to the brain, and it is a temptation to the heart. It is a temptation to the heart, and it is a temptation to the soul. It is a temptation to the soul, and it is a temptation to the body. It is a temptation to the body, and it is a temptation to the mind. It is a temptation to the mind, and it is a temptation to the spirit. It is a temptation to the spirit, and it is a temptation to the flesh. It is a temptation to the flesh, and it is a temptation to the blood. It is a temptation to the blood, and it is a temptation to the marrow. ### CURWENSVILLE

In giving "Reminiscences" before the members of the C. H. S. Alumni Association at the annual banquet Mrs. H. J. Barrett, of Hollidaysburg, Pa., seems to have stirred the old school spirit by mixing plenty of new names with the old along with plenty of fact. The Progress publishes this poem through the request of a number of the members of the Association.

Mrs. Barrett, who is best known in Curwensville as "Miss Mary" Reese-man, class of '87, gets her material from contact both as a student back in the days of Arnold's Hall and "Excelsior" and as one of the successful wielders of the so-called birch, having been Assistant Principal in the High School for some years.

REMINISCENCES

By MRS. H. J. BARRETT
Oh! Many and many a year ago
In this little town so gay
There stood a school house by the road—

'Twas built of logs and clay.
The windows of greased paper made,
The chimney deep and wide,
While rough hewn benches ranged themselves

Close to either side.
The master within laid down the law
Of readin' and 'ritin' and 'rithmetic,
Manners and habits and all things good

Taught to the tune of a hickory stick.
John Irvin, in eighteen thirty one.
Donated a piece of ground
On which was erected an academy

The finest to be found.
The academy became a public school
In a few years after this;
And General Patton was first to teach.

When teaching was such bliss.
'Twas here that Learning held full sway,
And Ignorance put to flight,
For General Patton a master was

And sowed the seed of light.
The seed sprang up and grew apace
As did the village fine;
And soon beheld three crowded rooms—

And one of them was mine.
The teacher's name was Nannie
Bard—
How many here remember?

Or does going back so far as that,
Recall some bleak December?
Miss Nannie changed her name quite soon,
Then next came Miss Laporte—

We learned to read and write and spell,
With arithmetic good sport.
There pass before us in grand review
Many and many faces—

Miss McQuade who turned over her knee,
The boy who jumped the traces.

Bailey and Pentz and R. A. Z.,
Mrs. Sloss, too, we see in the row,
Weaver and Gregory—the finest of men—

One after another they come and they go.
These teachers were steady and tried and true,
About them was nothing shoddy;

For each left his imprint upon the young mind
As well as upon the young body.
For in the olden days of a lively past,

The birch rod had full right
But we thrived on it in great content;
As witness me this night.
The old times are gone, alas! alas!

And with them the rod, alack!
No more do we hear the music sound
Of whackety, whackety, whack.
The old school house on Walnut street

Many a tale could tell
Of all the jolly youngsters there—
Of many a beau and belle.
Do you recall our nicknames?

Oh! Weren't they just fine?
There was "Quaker" Moore and
"Rusty" too.
And "Turnips" Gates in line.

There were "Doc" and "Keg" and
"Flop"
Liked by all the town;
There was also our "Bun" Leidy

And likewise "Stiney" Brown.
How many remember Addie
For whom "George Addie" was named?

How many remember "Cropsey"
Who as a farmer was famed?
There were "Nig" and "Bill" and
"Toff" and "Joe"

Each answering to his name
And these to us were greater
Than any of highest fame.
And many, many other names

Do we recall with glee,
As we think back on the olden times
That are no more to be.
We worked, we played, we squabbled,

We studied and we grew;
Then one glad day we entered
A fine stone building new.
Here was our first high school,

In all the land the best;
Where the wicked always trembled
And the weary ne'er could rest.
The vision comes more clearly now

Of faces loved so well,
And memory recalls a happy past
Of which no tongue can tell.
And the face of one is a Weaver—

A Weaver grand and true,
Who moved the shuttle and wove the thread,
As a master of minds can do.
And he had a Dyer to help him

Make the pattern bright and clear.
So that the fame of his workmanship
Has spread both far and near.
And here the face of a man

Who wielded the mighty pen,
Who kept the machinery moving,
Furnishing food for the minds of men
This man was always young with us

And ever full of fun—
This man—this mighty writer—
Was the great and good Thompson.
The very first classes were wonders

Greater than any beside;
For we did big things with little—
Never drifted with the tide.
We didn't have an Opera House,

We showed in the town hall,
Kept for such purposes
By the father of Samuel Paul.
We didn't have class colors,

And yet we were quite bright,
There wasn't even a class yell
Nor yet class flowers in sight.
We furnished our own bright colors,

All fun and jollity.
What we lacked in numbers,
We made up in quality.
Our first alumni banquet

Was surely very classy;
One girl even suggesting
That we get to it "enmasse"
The very first class was the wisest—

They knew of dangers galore,
So they had a Bovy to warn them,
Amid the storm's wild roar.
And those who followed were Orvis

Kerns,
And Harriet Crouch, so jolly;
There were Alice and May and George K. too,

And her whose name was Molly
There was Samuel H. and Katie
Whom later we called Tate—
There were the pioneers of High

School
And for others set the gait.
Each graduate of earlier days
Had a brave undaunted heart

As he blazed the trail for you and me
And bravely played his part.
My mind goes back to "Eighty seven"

And I think of Harry D—
Who always jollied us along
With speeches of great glee;
And S. Bird Kirk, so supple,

And dainty, Susan Bard,
And big, broad shouldered Crate,
Who studied—oh! so hard;
Of Gertrude Moore, both tall and fair,

Of Abner, Jack and Nan—
Tear from my heart these memories?
You never, never can.
In the days of long ago

When Knowledge with us had weight
And power became too Numerous
We measured by the Crate.
But we were never satisfied

With learning and with lore
For when they that we had our fill,
We always cried for Moore.
Ah, who are those before me

That nod and smile so bright?
Are these the Bards of olden fame,
Who sand of truth and might?
Here is a face that calls to mind,

Many a pleasant scene,
Reminding one of the old adage,
'A new broom sweeps quite clean'
A happy crowd comes into view,

Swept on by a merry gale.
The Daisies fair of "Ninety-three"
That crowd each Hill and Dale
Two "Dole"-ful faces next I see

They are upon my soul;
But how can they be otherwise.
When their very name is Dole
And Mary and Alex and George,

So laughing and jolly, dear sir,
We always laughed with them, when ever they went.
For each was a "Whittaker"

And now sweet Memory softly rolls
The thread of thought along.

Recalling dimly to my mind
A half forgotten song;
"Excelsior, Excelsior!"
The sweet and glad refrain

And "Excelsior" the song
From mountains unto main
Arrayed in royal purple,
Sweet modest faces come;

The dainty little "Violets" smile
And pass me one by one.
"O, Columbia the Gem of the Ocean",
Sang the class of "Ninety-Two".

"Great Scott," cried "Ninety Seven",
We're "Victors" over you.
So these faces crowd before me
A jolly, good, old line—

Robinson, Rorabaugh, Jenkins,
And R. K. Way, so fine.
Kittelberger, Kirk and Bigler,
McDowell and Humphrey, too.

Bloom, McNaull and Benson,
All pass in grand review.
I often think of Isaac—
How he peeped his candy all,

Then generously handed it over
To poor little Wilbur Wall.
And also I think of Douglass
Who often proved the goat;

And because it rimes so readily
I think of friends named Schrot.
I'd like to tell you all
That memory doth disclose,

But Time will not permit us
As on its flight it goes.
There are things in this reunion
That make us mighty glad.

There are other things to think of
That bring a feeling sad
In the dear old lovely days
Of a happy, happy past

Friendships were formed
That forever more shall last
But the hand of time has scattered
These old friends very far;

And some of these—our dear ones—
Have quietly crossed the bar.

There are Alice and Nan and Abner.
Of whom we think tonight.
They just dropped out of Life's hard
School.

To enter God's School of Light.
Some of us are getting bald
And some are growing white
But in our hearts we're just as young

As those youngsters here tonight.
Fair as the morning
Are these faces that I see;
Blithe are their merry hearts,

Happy, light and free!
Gay are the songs they sing
A joyous glad refrain
Till even the sportive echoes

Answer again and again.
Then here's to the health and happiness
Of the class of '22

Who with beauty, health and gayer
Combine other virtues true.
May they fight life's battles bravely
May true success theirs be

These happy, smiling faces—
The last that come to me.
Oh! dear old friends and school mates
Let us cherish our happy past

And go on to fight more bravely
For our times are going fast.
And when our work is ended
And we cross the swelling tide

May we greet each dear companion
Safe on the other side

THE CLEARFIELD PROGRESS, CLEARFIELD, PA., THURSDAY EVENING, JUNE 8, 1922.

HENRY FORD WILL STICK TO HIS JOB

Detroit, Mich., June 8.—Henry Ford is not a candidate for the Presidency. He would not turn his hand to obtain the nomination, according to close associates here. Ford, it is said, has but two interests outside of his automobile business, Muscle Shoals and his plan for the reformation of the existing prices for money. He is taking no interest in the various Senatorial contests throughout the country and has observed the result in Indiana and Iowa with only casual interest. Ford will never be a candidate for the Presidency or for any other public office if Mrs. Ford has anything to say about the matter, it was said by close friends of the Fords here today.

NEW YORK HOTELS WILL ASK HARDING TO DRY UP CITY

New York, June 8.—Ignoring Prohibition officials here, the New York Hotel Association of New York plans to intercede direct with President Harding to stop the brazen sale of liquor here and dry up the city. The hotel men claim that the liquor traffic in certain hotels and saloons is steadily increasing and that this is causing the legitimate and better class of hotels endless trouble in meeting competition.

BALLINGER, STORM CENTER OF TAFT REGIME, IS DEAD

Seattle, Wash., June 7.—Honor was paid here today to the memory of Richard A. Ballinger, 64, formerly secretary of the interior and a leading attorney of the northwest. Ballinger died at his home here last night after an illness of but two days duration. He served as secretary of the interior in the cabinet of President Taft and during that time was the center of the bitter "Pinchot-Ballinger" controversy over the development of Alaska and conservation policies.

LILLIAN RUSSELL LAID TO REST WITH MILITARY HONORS

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 8.—Lillian Russell Moore was laid to rest here today with all the honor due her high station in life. A detachment of marines led the funeral procession from the Moore Point Breeze home to Trinity Episcopal church. Rev. Edward S. Travis, Rector of Trinity church, officiated at the services and spoke touchingly of Miss Russell's success on the stage and of her exemplary conduct after she had retired to private life. A wreath sent by President and Mrs. Harding was placed on the casket while a firing squad of Post 231 American Legion boomed a salute.

Harvard's Attitude Toward Jews Subject of Discussion; Secretary Declines to Talk

Cambridge, Massachusetts, June 8.—The discussion as to whether Jews are to be barred from Harvard is going briskly on beneath the surface. The Secretary of the University declined to answer when asked whether Harvard would accept Jews on an equal footing with Gentiles when the new scheme of sifting applicants is put into effect. It is estimated there are between 300 and 500 Jews in Harvard and they are in the habit of capturing some of the highest honors and usually stand high in their classes.

They're Here—"Firewomen"!

Since the members of the Hillsdale (N. J.) volunteer fire force are commuters and away during the day, their wives have organized to battle daylight blazes. Two of the fire lassies, Edna Manahan and Assistant Chief "Buster" Wandell, are shown driving the truck. Inset, Chief "Ted" Boesche.

ELK BALL WILL BE HELD ON TUESDAY, JUNE TWENTIETH

The local lodge of the "Best People on Earth" more commonly known as the Elks is having the time of its life trying to get the ball for the ball game. They began to set dates and ran into the Firemen's doings. Then, there came another show and finally they picked on Tuesday, the 20th as the day best fitted to pull their ball. But alas, and a couple of alphas! The printer was against them. In setting up the ad there was a mixup in the dates and we want to impress on you that the ball will come off in a genuine "Elk Way", and you know they know how to do things; on Tuesday, June 20th.

EFFORTS TO BRING COAL DISPUTE TO AN END IS FUTILE

Washington, June 7.—Efforts of the Government to bring operators and miners together with a view to settling the coal strike were disclosed for the first time by Secretary Hoover in a statement sent to the Senate in compliance with a resolution of inquiry introduced recently by Senator Walsh, Massachusetts. "Quite informally and repeatedly," Hoover's statement said, "suggestions on which the disputants might well confer and hope for a settlement have been made through the department of labor and this department or both but thus far these suggestions have been without result." The secretary prefaced his statement with the declaration that the efforts have been made despite his belief that "governmental agencies have no legal authority to terminate or interfere in the strike."

STUDENT PRIEST BITTEN BY MAD DOG, DIES IN AGONY

Philadelphia, Pa., June 8.—Frederick Manning, aged 24, of Trenton, N. J., died in intense agony at Bryn Mawr as the result of a dog bite which occurred on May 15th. Manning was a theological student at Villa Nova College. Doctors say that his death was the most distressing in the history of the institution in which he was being treated. Shortly before the end he became violent and it became necessary for several nurses and doctors to hold him in bed. The dog which bit Manning was not captured and is still at large.

Grove City Students Fail In Effort To Save Leslie's Life

Grove City, Pa., June 7.—Pleading with his college chums for "Air, air, more air", Edwin Leslie 20-year-old president of the sophomore class of Grove City College, died here today after fighting gamely against death for 46 1-2 hours during which time the spark of life was kept alive by fellow students who applied artificial respiration. Leslie, who received his fatal injury when he dived into a gymnasium swimming pool dislocating his neck, was conscious to the end. "It's too late, fellows; you can't do me any good now", he whispered to his chums who were operating the pulmotor. Five minutes before his lips were sealed in death his mother, Mrs. Margery Leslie, of Sharon, Pa., was at his bedside. Leslie's lips moved, but the dying message he sought to leave with his mother was not audible. Tonight in the United Presbyterian church, filled to the doors with college students and townspeople, the Rev. W. G. Reagle, college chaplain spoke the last words in tribute to the youth. The casket containing Leslie's body was banked with floral offerings. Thirty students who worked in relays applying artificial respiration during Leslie's valiant battle against death served as honorary pallbearers. Following the church services the body was sent to Sharon for interment probably tomorrow.

ANDERSON—BELL

Yesterday, afternoon, in Trinity Methodist Church, the pastor, Rev. H. L. Jacobs, married with the ring ceremony Oscar Gustaf Anderson and Mildred Ann Bell, both of Grampian, Pa. They were accompanied by friends.

Spirit of Co-operation Shown Guarantees Flag Day Will Be Quite an Event Here Wednesday

Even before the suggestion was made in The Progress yesterday, the two groups planning celebration of Flag Day in Clearfield on Wednesday next had met together, and decided to join in a community celebration that would bring home to every citizen of this town as never before the significance of the American flag. Representatives of the organizations appealed to by the clergy of the town to plan a civic celebration, namely, the Rotary Club, the Commercial Club, the American Legion and Clearfield Community Service, had met, and agreed to co-operate with the B. P. O. E. in the recognition of Flag Day. Inasmuch as the Elks had already made considerable progress with their plans and as their movement is a national one to obtain fuller recognition for the day, it seemed fitting that the celebration in Clearfield should be made in co-operation with that organization.

The details of the plans for the day have not yet been worked out. They will include, however, an effort to have the American flag floating from every building in town and worn by every man, woman and child. In the evening there will be a band concert, with community singing of patriotic airs and an appropriate program in the Court House Square. The school children have been urged to meet at the High School at 7 o'clock to march to the square and will be given a special place during the exercises. Further details will appear in The Progress from time to time, but it is certain that every citizen of Clearfield will have an opportunity to show his patriotism and respect for his country's flag on June 14th, and it is hoped that everyone will keep the evening free for attendance at the community gathering to honor the flag.

Fear Eight Sailors On Steamer Near Russia Have Been Drowned

Washington, D. C., June 8.—Eight sailors from the U. S. S. New Brunswick are missing and are believed drowned near Amurly, Russia, according to a wireless message received today. The dispatch was dated June 6th and stated that eight men in a small boat were missing. They were last seen off Sandy Point Amurly, at 1:30 p. m. and that no trace of them could be found after a two day search. It is believed the boat capsized in a sudden squall.

Daugherty Declares The Steel Merger Will Be Closely Scrutinized

Washington, D. C., June 8.—If the Department of Justice finds that the Bethlehem Lackawanna steel merger tends to restrain competition action to prevent its consummation will be taken Attorney Daugherty said today. He said his investigation into the merger is nearly complete and that he will have his report ready in a few days.

WHISKEY THIEVES CUT WIRES AND ROB PITTSBURGH HOME

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 8.—Daring whiskey thieves terrorized residents in the North Highland Avenue district last night and escaped after looting a brick liquor vault in the residence of Hermann Roth. Telephone lines at the Roth residence and at all nearby residences were cut and the thieves fled with two automobile loads of spirituous and other high proof liquors. Roth, who put up a fight with the thieves, was made a prisoner for a time but later released.

FIREMEN'S EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETS

The Executive Committee of the Central District Volunteer Firemen's Association met in the Firemen's Hall in the Borough Building yesterday afternoon to map out plans for the coming district convention which is scheduled to be held in DuBois on Wednesday and Thursday August 30th and 17th. All members of the Executive Committee were present but one and reported that the firemen were looking forward with eager anticipation to their coming trip to DuBois.

Drs. L. R. Browne, P. L. Showers, F. D. Leopold and R. W. Livingstone motored to DuBois this morning to be in attendance at North-Western Dental Convention.

AGED NEGRO TO INHERIT THOUSANDS

Greenville, Texas, June 8.—A second hand Ford truck and the mending of a screen door that's a "leetle mite warped." These are the earthly ambitions of John Lindley, aged negro chef in the New Beckham Hotel, whose lawyers say is about to get a half million dollars from an oil property. Lindley says he is going ahead with his cooking despite his affluence, but he has had his eye on a used flivver for some time and he wants to do a little fixing up around the house. "I am going to take care of these boys, too," he said, indicating the grinning circle of waiters and bus boys surrounding him in the hotel kitchen. John's mother owned a valuable property in the Mexia oil district ever since slave days.

YOUNG FARMERS TO HAVE GREAT TIME AT STATE JUNE 12TH

A program bigger and better than that of previous years is being arranged for the Young Farmers who come to the Pennsylvania State College June 12-15. The aim is to bring together several hundred young people from all parts of the state who wish to become more efficient farmers.

Boys, other than those who are members of the judging teams are welcome. They will be permitted to participate in all the Young Farmers' Program and may enter the judging contest as individuals.

Sleeping quarters in the College dormitories will be provided without cost. Quarters in private homes will be available for a limited number of girls, at $1.00 per night. Meals can be secured at $1.00 per day. This must be paid by those attending, but arrangements for convenient and satisfactory places will be made by those in charge of the program.

Enrollment will begin Monday afternoon, June 12th. Monday evening there will be a big get together meeting. There will be an interesting program, including songs and yells, and each county delegation should, if possible, come with a good yell and song all ready to give.

There will be two days of concentrated instruction in subject matter, preparatory to the various judging contests. Members of the regular college staff will give the instructions to the various groups. A part of the time will be devoted to instruction in judging, in which the same animals, fowls, and material will be used in college student instruction judging work. There will be four groups: General livestock, Poultry, Dairy Cattle (only), and Farm Crops (corn and potatoes.)

Each study and judging group will meet separately and at the same hours. It will be impossible for a boy or girl to enroll in more than one division.

A part of each afternoon will be devoted to athletics and organized games in charge of specially qualified men. Part of the time will be spent in attending agricultural demonstrations or for specially conducted campus tours or trips over college farms.

Each one should come prepared to have a good time, as well as to do some real work. Following is a list of suggested things to bring along.

- Sweater and raincoat.
- Suit and shoes suitable for athletics.
- Ball, gloves, bats and mask.
- Tennis rackets and balls.
- Extra bed blankets.
- Face and bath towels.
- So ap, comb and brush and tooth brush.
- Camera.
- Note book and pencil.
- A check room will be operated for valuables and suitcases.

PACKED AUDITORIUM SEES ONE HUNDRED GRADUATE AT HIGH

Parents And Invited
Guests See Wonderful
And Inspiring Sight At 1922 Graduation.

PRETTY SCENES

The Commencement Exercises of Clearfield High School, which were held at the High School Auditorium last evening, was the magnet which attracted an overflow audience to the Temple of Learning.

The Class of 1922, composed of one hundred members, is the largest class ever graduated from Clearfield High. The one hundred eager faced young men and women about to say goodbye to "school days" made an inspiring sight as they were grouped about the stage, which was artistically decorated in the colors of the class.

The Salutatory address was delivered by Miss Hilma Connelly in a highly capable manner while Miss Helen Fallstick, proved to be a splendid Valedictorian. The program in full follows:

1. Invocation.
2. Salutatory Address Miss Hilma Connelly.
3. Oration—"The Relation of a Commercial Education to the Business World" Miss Hazel Boyce.
4. Music Senior Class.
5. Oration—"Ideals Through Literature" Miss Lenora Piper.
6. Valedictory Miss Helen Fallstick.
7. Music Senior Class.
8. Presentation of Diplomas Mr. A. D. Bigler, President of School Board.
9. Commencement Address Dr. Chas. Wm. Stoddart, Dean, School of Liberal Arts, State College, Penna.
10. Senior Class Song.
11. Benediction.

FOURTH ANNUAL FARMER'S WEEK TO BE BIG EVENT

A larger and more elaborate program has been arranged for the Annual Farmers' Week at State College which will be held this year on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, June 14th, 15th and 16th. The meetings will be somewhat similar to those last year, in that they will afford everyone an opportunity to join different groups piloted by an instructor, who will take these groups around and explain the different things regarding the demonstrations on the College farm.

The evening meetings on Wednesday and Thursday will also be very instructive, with an address by the Honorable Frederick Rasmussen on Wednesday evening and Dr. Thomas, President of the College, and Alexander Dunbar, President of the Pennsylvania Bankers' Association, for Thursday evening.

A special program has been arranged for the women, which will be found very entertaining as well as instructive.

Room and board can be obtained at the different Fraternity Houses and Dormitories for $2.50 per day. Reservations will be made for those who desire to have them, by writing to your county agent, W. C. Sterrett, Farm Bureau, Clearfield, Pa.

DETECTIVE BURNS PUT IN CHARGE OF "GAS" PRICE PROBE

Washington, D. C., June 8.—William J. Burns, Detective Agency, has been placed in personal charge of the gasoline price investigation, Attorney General Daugherty announced today. Burns already has received many reports from all parts of the country and an investigation will be made to determine whether a "gentleman's agreement" exists among the big oil companies to profit at the expense of the increasing demand.

my love story all spoiled, when I was getting along so beautifully with Mother and the violinist.

But I'm feeling better now. I've been thinking it over. I don't believe Mother's going to care so very much. I don't believe she'd want a man that would pretend to come courting her, when all the while he was really courting the hired girl—I mean maid. Besides, there's Mr. Easterbrook left (and one or two others that I haven't said much about, as I didn't think they had much chance.) And so far as the love story for the book is concerned, that isn't spoiled, after all, for it will be ever so much more exciting to have the violinist fall in love with Theresa than with Mother, for, of course, Theresa isn't in the same station of life at all, and that makes it a—mess—alliance. (I don't remember exactly what the word is; but I know it means an alliance that makes a mess of things because the lovers are not equal to each other.) Of course, for the folk who have to live it, it may not be so nice; but for my story here this makes it all the more romantic and thrilling. So that's all right.

Of course, so far, I'm the only one that knows, for I haven't told it. I'm the only one that's seen anything. Of course, I shall warn Mother, if I think it's necessary, so she'll understand it isn't her, but Theresa that the violinist is really in love with and courting. She won't mind, I'm sure, after she thinks of it a minute. And won't it be a good joke on Aunt Hattie and Grandfather when they find out they've been fooled all the time, supposing it's Mother, and worrying about it?

Oh, I don't know! This is some love story, after all!

TWO DAYS LATER

What do you suppose has happened now? Why, that wretched violinist is nothing but a deep-dyed villain! Listen what he did. He proposed to Mother—actually proposed to her—and after all he'd said to that Theresa girl, about his being perfectly happy if he could marry her. And Mother—Mother all the time not knowing! Oh, I'm so glad I was there to rescue her! I don't mean at the proposal—I didn't hear that. But afterward.

It was like this:

They had been out automobiling—Mother and the violinist. I was in my favorite window-seat, reading, when they came home and walked into the library. They never looked my way at all, but just walked toward the fireplace. And there he took hold of both her hands and said:

"Why must you wait, darling? Why can't you give me my answer now, and make me the happiest man in all the world?"

"Yes, yes, I know," answered Mother; and I knew by her voice that she was all shaky and trembling. "But if I could only be sure—sure of myself."

"But, dearest, you're sure of me!" cried the violinist. "You know how I love you. You know you're the only woman I have ever loved, or ever could love!"

"Why Must You Wait, Darling?"

Yes, just like that he said it—that awful lie—and to my mother. My stars! Do you suppose I waited to hear any more? I guess not!

I fairly tumbled off my seat, and my book dropped with a bang, as I ran forward. Dear, dear, but how they did jump—both of them! And I guess they were surprised. I never thought how't was going to affect them—my breaking in like that. But I didn't wait—not a minute. I just started right in and began to talk. And I talked hard and fast, and lots of it.

I don't know now what I said, but I know I asked him what he meant by saying such an awful lie to my mother, when he'd just said the same thing, exactly most, to Theresa, and he'd hugged her and kissed her, and everything. I'd seen him. And—

But I didn't get a chance to say half I wanted to. I was going on to tell him what I thought of him; but Mother guessed out, "Marie! Marie! Stop!" And then I stopped. I had to, of course. Then she said that would do, and I might go to my room. And I went. And that's all I know about it, except that she came up, after a little, and said for me not to talk any more about it, to her, or to any one else; and to please try to forget it.

I tried to tell her what I'd seen, and what I'd heard that wicked, deep-dyed villain say; but she wouldn't let me. She shook her head, and said, "Hush, hush, dear"; and that no good could come of talking of it, and she wanted me to forget it. She was very sweet and very gentle, and she smiled, but there were stern corners to her mouth, even when the smile was there. And I guess she told him what was what. Anyway, I know they had quite a talk before she came up to me, for I was watching at the window for him to go; and when he did go he looked very red and cross and he stalked away with a never-will-I-darken this door-again kind of step, just as far as I could see him.

I don't know, of course what will happen next, nor whether he'll ever come back for Theresa, but I shouldn't think even she would want him, after this, if she found out.

And now, where's my love story coming in, I should like to know?

TWO DAYS AFTER CHRISTMAS

Another wonderful thing has happened. I've had a letter from Father—from Father!—a letter—me!

It came this morning. Mother brought it to me. She looked queer—a little. There were two red spots in her cheeks, and her eyes were very bright.

"I think you have a letter here from—your father," she said, handing it out.

She hesitated before the "your father" just as she always does. And it isn't hardly ever that she mentions his name, anyway. But when she does she always stops a funny little minute before it, just as she did today.

I could see she was wondering what could be in it. But I guess she wasn't wondering any more than I was, only I was gladder to get it than she was I suppose. Anyway, when she saw how glad I was, and how I jumped for the letter, she drew back, and looked somehow as if she'd been hurt, and said:

"I did not know, Marie, that a letter from—your father would mean so much to you."

I don't know what I did say to her.

I guess I didn't say anything. I'd all ready begun to read the letter, and I was in such a hurry to find out what he'd said.

I'll copy it here. It wasn't long. It was like this:

"My Dear Marie:

"Some way Christmas has made me think of you. I wish I had sent you some gift. Yet I have not the slightest idea what would please you. To tell the truth, I tried to find something—but had to give it up.

"I am wondering if you had a good time, and what you did. After all, I'm pretty sure you did have a good time, for you are Marie now. You see, I have not forgotten how tired you got of being—Marie. Well, well, I do not know as I can blame you.

"And now that I have asked what you did for Christmas, I suspect it is no more than a fair turnout to tell you what I did. I suppose I had a very good time. Your Aunt Jane says I did. I heard her telling one of the neighbors that last night. She had a very fine dinner, and she invited Mrs. Dunning and Miss Snow and Miss Sanborn to eat it with us. She said she didn't want me to feel lonesome. But you can feel real lonesome in a crowd sometimes. Did you know that Marie?

"But I left them to their chatter after dinner and went out to the observatory. I think I must have fallen asleep on the couch there, for it was quite dark when I awoke. But I didn't mind that, for there were some observations I wanted to take. It was a beautiful clear night, so I stayed there till nearly morning.

"How about it? I suppose Marie plays the piano every day, now, doesn't she? The piano here hasn't been touched since you went away. Oh yes, it was touched once. Your aunt played hymns on it for a missionary meeting.

"Well, what did you do Christmas? Suppose you write and tell

"Your Father."

I'd been reading the letter out loud, and when I got through Mother was pacing up and down the room. For a minute she didn't say anything; then she whirled round suddenly and faced me, and said, just as if something inside of her was making her say it:

"I notice that in—"

your mother in that letter, Marie. I suppose—your father has quite forgotten that there is such a person in the world as—I."

But I told her no, oh, no, and that I was sure he remembered her, for he used to ask me questions often about what she did, and the violinist and all.

"The violinist!" cried Mother, whirling around on me again. (She'd begun to walk up and down once more.) "You don't mean to say you ever told your father about him?"

"Oh, no, no, everything," I explained, trying to show how patient I was, so she would be patient, too. (But it didn't work.) "I couldn't tell him everything because everything hadn't happened then. But I told about his being here, and about the others, too; but, of course, I said I didn't know which you'd take, and—"

"You told him you didn't know which I'd take!" gasped Mother.

Just like that she interrupted, and she looked so shocked. Then she began to walk again, up and down, up and down. Then, all of a sudden, she flung herself on the couch and began to cry and sob as if her heart would break. And when I tried to comfort her, I only seemed to make it worse, for she threw her arms around me and cried:

"Oh, my darling, my darling, don't you see how dreadful it is, how dreadful it is?"

And then is when she began to talk some more about being married, and unmarried as we were. She held me close again and began to sob and cry.

"Oh, my darling, don't you see how dreadful it all is—how unnatural it is for you to live—this way? And for you—your poor child!—what could be worse for you? And here I am, jealous—jealous of your own father, for fear you'll love him better than you do me!"

"Oh, I know I ought not to say all this to you—I know I ought not to. But I can't—help it. I want you! I want you every minute, but I have to give you up—six whole months of every year I have to give you up to him. And he's your father, Marie. And he's a good man. I know he's a good man. I know it all the better now since I've seen—other men. And I ought to tell you to love him. But I'm so afraid—I'm so afraid I'll love him better than you do me, and want to leave—me. And I can't give you up! I can't give you up!"

Then I tried to tell her, of course, that she wouldn't have to give me up, and that I loved her a whole lot better than I did Father. But even that didn't comfort her, 'cause she said I ought to love him. That he was lonesome and needed me. He needed me just as much as she needed me, and maybe more. And then she went on again about how unnatural and awful it was to live the way we were living. And she called herself a wicked woman that she'd ever allowed things to get to such a pass. And she said if she could only have her life to live over again she'd do so differently—oh so differently.

Then she began to cry again, and I couldn't do a thing with her; and of course, that worked me all up and I began to cry.

She stopped then, right off short and wiped her eyes fiercely with her wet bill of a handkerchief. And she

ODDS AND ENDS AND THINGS

By J. D. C.

The coming recognition of the survivors of Clearfield's 1st fire company by the conferring of honorary membership in the fire department is both timely and proper.

The original company was organized in August of 1881, following the fire which destroyed the Shaw House then one of Clearfield County's leading, largest, and most modern hotels. These "old fellows" of today were the young, peppy fellows of that day and generation, who banded themselves together in the common interest and gave of their time and efforts to preserve the lives and property of the community. They made slight pretensions and were satisfied to work with crude tools, the best the town could give them then. Their mission was to save property from the fire fiend and they did it to the best of their abilities.

In that early day the volunteer fireman considered he was doing a public duty and took a pride in his work.

Following the organization of the old company, the fire laddies, badly under equipped toiled through mud to the boot-tops many times to get to and from fires and thought nothing of it. They had no motor driven apparatus on which to haul ten to twenty-five men at top speed to the fires but those "old fellows" were on hand at every fire, surmounting every one of the many difficulties confronting them.

They followed along through the years and were gradually succeeded by the other young men growing up in the community, who also worked hard with the "tools" provided by Council from time to time. The borough was struggling along, getting streets paved and making other improvements which required all the tax money that could be raised. The fire men accepted the meager support Council would give them from time to time and never once thought of dictating to the Borough Dads just what kind of machine or machines they should supply them with, but they did put the fires out.

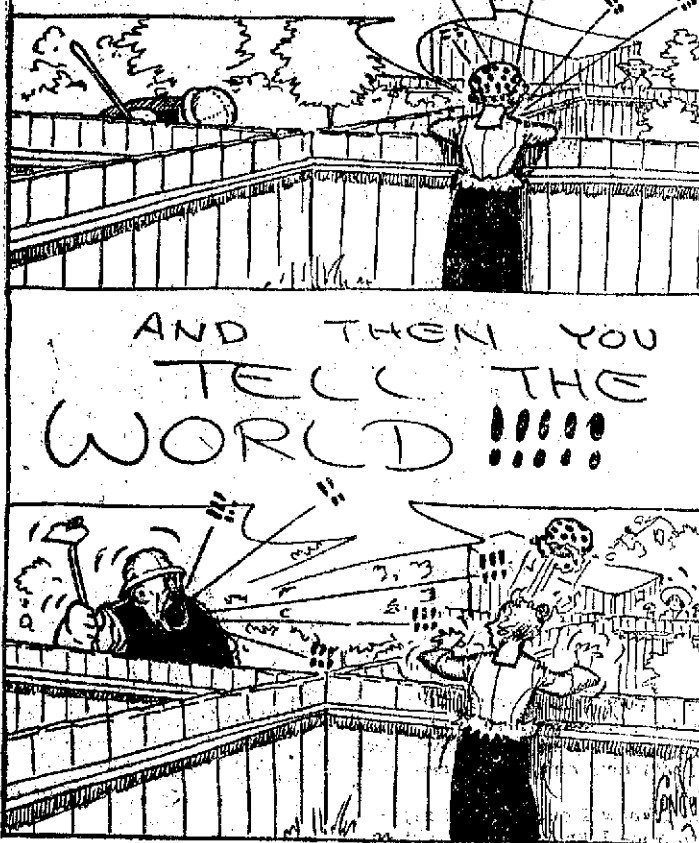

In fact, up to as late as ten years ago, the entire equipment of the Clearfield Fire Department consisted of a horse drawn hook and ladder wagon, a horse drawn steam pumper and three old two wheel hose reels, with a capacity of about 500 feet of hose, each. When they wanted additional equipment, the firemen on account of the conditions of Borough Finances staged a home talent show, raised $540, and bought for the use of each of three of the companies an additional two wheel hose reel.

But since that time and during the past ten years the Fire Department has been motorized, each of the four companies were supplied with a motor truck and since then it has been more of a pleasure than a task to combat fires in the community. In addition to the apparatus and other equipment, Council has supplied fine brick hose houses with handsome parlors or lounging rooms for our firemen. Times change, though, and people also—the fireman being no exception, and now, despite all we have—and no town our size anywhere in this section of the state is better equipped than the present day firemen—who also put the fires out—how long and loud for more equipment regardless of where the money is to come from and even take time out to tell the hard pressed Borough Solons just what they can buy or what they will use if purchased.

This is a queer world and even we volunteer firemen are queer people and sometimes kicking gets us some place and sometimes it don't. But all present day firemen should attend the conferring of honorary memberships on those "old timers" and get a first hand slant on what they had to contend with. It might help some just now.

"SPRINGTIME"

A great deal of interest is being shown by everyone in the coming presentation of "Springtime" at the Driggs Theatre on June 22 and 23, under the auspices of the Junior Woman's Club.

The director of the production Miss Person, who presents John P. Rogers Producing Company, is busy day and night rehearsing the cast of nearly 100 people, for the final presentation on the above dates.

"Springtime" is a sparkling comedy set to music, which has as its theme the plighted romance of a scion of 1888 aristocracy and the daughter of the founder of "Brewster's Pills" which is finally realized in the union of their grandchildren of 1920. The time involved in the unfolding of the story covers a period of 50 years.

NO. 1 BOYS BEAT NO. 2.

Clearfield Fire Company No. 1 put it all over their Second Ward Hose Company brethren in a series of five games of volley ball played on the grounds in rear of the Second Ward hose house last evening.

Volley ball is a new stunt in Clearfield, but the way the downtowners went to it showed they learn quickly and are entirely too frisky for the Reedsvillians.

The scores for the five games were:
No. 1 15 15 15 15 15
No. 2 7 3 1 7 3

SICKLY CHILDREN NEED A TONIC

Nerv-Worth Tastes Good, Aids Digestion, Regulates the Bowels and Tones Up

Statistics have shown a large percentage of school children suffer from malnutrition and general debility and thus lag in their studies, are listless and anaemic. Under such handicap the question arises "Has Your Child a Fair Chance?" Look at your children after school tonight. Is there a haggard look—all fagged out. Are the eyes dull or sparkling with pep and healthy vigor? If there is not an excess of good health there is need for a reliable tonic and system regulator and there is none better than the famous Nerv-Worth. It tastes good, all children like it. It aids digestion, sweetens the stomach, has a mild but very certain action on the bowels does not purge but gives healthy, normal and regular action. It is just as good for old folks as for children and just as good for big strong men as for delicate women. It is a reliable family remedy for nearly all ills come from disordered stomachs and bowels and Nerv-Worth is the greatest remedy in the world for indigestion and constipation. Most druggists sell it for one cent a bottle. It is always for sale at Stewart's Drug Store in this city and every druggist is authorized to give one money back if the first bottle does not show encouraging results.

Cool Attractive Frocks Are Summer Necessities

For every hour of the day there's a need for a pretty frock. Sports frocks of ratine, eponge or krepe knit, conform to Fashion's dictate for sports apparel whether for tea on the veranda or a tee-off on the club green. Prices and styles are alike attractive, now. They challenge your immediate attention.

Gingham Frocks Piquantly Styled

Gingham Frocks are as charming as they are practical. In plaid or checked designs, appealing colors, and piquant styles. Prices, too, are practical. Price tags tell an interesting story of very substantial savings.

From
$3.50 to $7.00

Frocks of Voile and Dotted Swiss

If you have been waiting for just the right opportunity to purchase a dark, cool

SUMMER And New Clothes

CLOTHES for travel, motoring, boating—for golf, informal dances—you need more different kinds of clothes in summer than at any other time of the year!... And you need not do without a single one this summer. For now you, yourself, can make lovelier clothes than ever before—clothes that will have real Parisian chic—and save actually more than ever, through a wonderful new picture-guide.

THE DELTOR

THAT SAVES YOU 50c TO $10.00

This wonderful new aid to home-sewing tells you, by means of pictures so simple that you follow them almost by instinct—at once—

1 HOW TO SAVE 50c TO $10.00 ON MATERIALS

The Deltor gives you a "picture-layout," worked out by Butterick experts for your own individual pattern, in your exact size, for every width of suitable material, that saves you anywhere from 1/4 to 1 1/2 yards of goods.

2 HOW TO ACHIEVE THAT COVETED PARISIAN CHARM

Stitch by stitch, as your needle flies in and out, basting, then stitching, just as the Deltor's pictures show, something more than a correctly draped frock grows beneath your fingers. All unconsciously, you have sewn Paris' own distinction into your gown!

3 HOW TO FINISH LIKE THE CLEVEREST FRENCH MODISTE

The Deltor will tell you the French modiste's own answer to every perplexing question of finishing or adornment—all those important little things that make the difference between "just a dress" and a creation from Paris.

BUTTERICK

Each new Butterick pattern is now accompanied by its own individual Deltor. Ask for "Butterick pattern with Deltor" and experience the joy not only of creating the loveliest summer clothes you ever wore, but the added joy of having saved on each garment more than you ever did before!

THE FABRIC SECTION

Here's A Mint of Ideas for Needlewomen

If your summer wardrobe seems to lack something—a stroll through our Wash Goods Section may solve your problem as it did a customer's yesterday. "Oh," she said, "I knew my tub skirt needed a gay blouse to give it an air." She purchased a remnant of brilliant citron yellow ratine, thus gaining a pretty blouse at a mere trifle of a price. Wash Goods from 16c to $3.75 the yard.

Engineers Present Argument For Better Than A Living Wage

Rules for 'Just and Reasonable Wage'
We believe that it is fair to ask the question: What are locomotive engineers' services worth to society? The Transportation Act lays down seven
rules by which a "just and reasonable wage" shall be determined by the
United States Railroad Labor Board.
In brief they are:

1. Wages paid for similar work in other industries
2. Relation between wages and cost of living.
3. Hazards of employment.
4. Training and skill required.
5. Degree of responsibility.
6. Character and regularity of employment.
7. Inequalities of present wages or treatment, the result of previous wage adjustments.

Eleven Years Length of Engineer's Life

Obviously, there is no similar work in other industries with which the labor of a locomotive engineer can be compared; nor should any skilled worker be held down to a mere subsistence based on the bare cost of living. What then, are the hazards, the skill, and the responsibility exacted of engineers? We doubt if the public realizes the risks daily assumed by every engineman in active service. According to the mortality tables, based upon years of actual experience by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Insurance Department, the average duration of life of a railroad engineer is but 11 years and 7 days. No engineer knows when he steps into the engine cab whether through no fault of his, his life will be snuffed out before the end of the run. The safety appliances which railroad employees have secured only after prolonged struggle can reduce, but they cannot eliminate, the risks incurred by engine service employees.

Severe Tests Eliminate All But Few
The training, skill and physical perfection required of an engineer is such that the great majority of the engine wipers, hostlers and firemen, who spend years of labor preparing for the opportunity to grasp the throttle fall by the wayside in the thorough elimination of the less fit. Even after rejecting all who cannot measure up to the strictest tests for height, perfect vision, heart action, blood pressure, etc., seventeen per cent of the firemen who aspire to become engineers are rejected at the end of three years because their eyesight becomes impaired by the fierce glare of a grate of coal throwing off 2500 degrees of heat. In addition 76% do not exhibit the temperature and natural ability required of an engineer, so that only 17 out of every 100 candidates ever win a place on the right side on the cab. Even after this rigorous process of the selection of the most fit only six out of every 100 get places in passenger service. In brief the length of training and skill required to become a successful engineer is no less than that demanded of a competent dentist or an able lawyer.

Engineer's Responsibility Exceeds Doctor's

It is an axiom of social justice that the payment received for any service should depend in part upon the responsibility involved. The skilled surgeon is certainly entitled to a greater compensation than the woman who mops up the hospital floors. In no other profession in the world not even excepting the medical profession, is a man entrusted with greater responsibility for the lives of his fellow-men than is the engineer in the locomotive cab. How well he discharges this obligation is indicated in the report of the Interstate Commerce Commission for 1921 which shows that fatalities on the American railroads are less than for the past 22 years, 16,239,774 passengers being carried to one killed. Whenever a wreck does occur it is the men who run the trains and not the passengers who usually pay the price. Indeed, the scrupulous carelessness of engine and train service employees is such that one important transportation line carrying 50,000,000 persons a year has not fatally injured one person in four years.

There are 34 times as many people killed by automobiles in the United States, according to the 1920 census, as there are passengers killed on the railroads. The law recognizes the great responsibility for human life entrusted to the engineer, and holds him strictly accountable for its exercise. There is a grim truth in the jest that if a doctor makes a mistake he buries it, but if an engineer makes a mistake he goes to jail for it. Train service employees are obliged to perform their work with a diligence which precludes the possibility of carelessness or negligence.

An engineer is not only responsible for the lives placed in his care but also for the millions of dollars worth of property which he handles every month of his service. President M. C. Byrd of the Western Maryland Railroad recently said: "An engineer running a train with 100 coal cars virtually has $500,000 worth of property in his care and for this reason if no other, the members of the Brotherhoods should have comparatively high wages."

Low Wages Will Demoralize Transportation System

If the American people permit the wage of the railway employees to be beaten down in order to pay dividends on railway stocks, which have been notoriously watered, the people themselves will be the losers. Railroad service demands an exceptionally high degree of skill, carefulness and responsibility. Wages paid in this service must be sufficient to secure the very best human material. Low wages will inevitably demoralize our transportation system. The actual figures presented by the Railroad Labor Board prove that even the most skilled railway employees are not overpaid and that many of them are receiving less than the clerks in a dry goods store. Finally, the railroads themselves would profit if they would devote less effort to beating down wages to the lowest possible level and a little more effort to cultivate the good will of their employees.

MRS. PETER GRAFFIUS

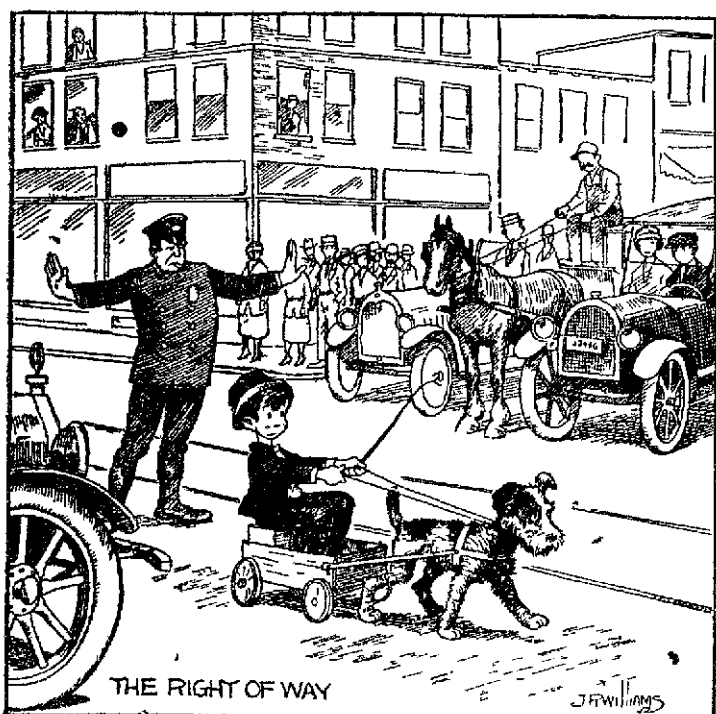

Mrs. Peter Graffius died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. E. Williams on May 22, 1922. Death resulting from complications from which she had suffered for years. She was aged 76 years, 7 months and 26 days. She was married in 1863, her husband preceding her to the grave 22 years ago. She is survived by five children as follows: Mrs. C. F. Graham, Mrs. T. H. Mannes and Herman L. of Shiloh; Mrs. C. E. Williams and Mrs. J. S. Owens of Bigler. Two children having died years ago.

Ear hath not heard, eye hath not seen,
The glories of that home of song,
Though stormy billows roll between,
I go to join the angel throng,
But of the joys beyond the tide,
The welcomes on that golden strand,
The best shall be from Him who died
To bring us to that shining land.

Nowadays.

GIVES STOMACH REMEDY TO FELLOW SUFFERERS

Mrs. Smithy, Columbus, O., Gives Her
Friends Quick Stomach Relief with
Jaques' Little Wonder Capsules

The best proof of the value of any remedy is the readiness with which those who are helped by it recommend it to their friends. Those who have suffered the pangs and tortures of indigestion and dyspepsia are quick to acknowledge the prompt relief given by a brief use of Jaques' Little Wonder Capsules for indigestion, dyspepsia and constipation. They are so grateful for the relief they have obtained they not only recommend this valuable stomach treatment, but in many instances buy the capsules to give to fellow sufferers. This is the case with Mrs. G. G. Smithy, 823 N. 11th St., Columbus, O., who writes: "Please find enclosed stamps for which send me two boxes Jaques' Little Wonder Capsules. I used them last summer in Plattburg and they gave me such relief." A few days later Mrs. Smithy wrote again: "Received the two boxes of your capsules and as I have several friends here who are bothered with their stomachs I have given almost all my capsules away for them to try; so send me two more boxes for which you will find stamps enclosed. Please send at once as I do not want to get out of them."

Jaques' Little Wonder Capsules relieve indigestion, dyspepsia, flatulence, catarrh of the stomach, acid stomach, biliousness, heartburn and heaviness and dizziness after eating. They are easy to take. Simply place one in your mouth and take a swallow of water. Jaques' Little Wonder Capsules are made of pure gelatin which promptly dissolves upon reaching the stomach, freeing the contents to do their work in restoring the digestive organs to normal.

PRECISION plays an important part in the manufacture of the Special-Six. It is largely responsible for the dependable service that has singled out the Special-Six as an incomparable value.

Six hundred and eighty inspectors safeguard precision in the Studebaker factories. They literally inspect every part that goes into every car—and every operation on every part. Before cars are passed for delivery 9,500 inspections are made.

In the Special-Six there are 1,120 mechanical operations to the accuracy of one-thousandth of an inch, 360 to one-half-thousandth.

As to the car's performance, a brief experience will reveal its superiority far more convincingly than we could tell it.

Studebaker cars make friends quickly, because they give most for the money. And they invariably keep these friends, because of the universal satisfaction they give in fine performance, economy and service.

Hide and Vanity.

I would much rather fight pride than vanity, because pride has a standing way of hiding. You know where it is. It thrusts its black shroud of conceit over the face of a man who is at a loss where to strike the enemy's vital defensive, that insectious, the red-tipped feeling; and men that fight vanity are like men that fight waves and butterflies. It is as hard to catch them than to hit the acrobatic Ward Beecher.

HER AILMENTS ALL GONE NOW

Mrs. Sherman Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lake, Michigan.—"About a year ago I suffered with irregularities and a weakness and at times was obliged to stay off my feet. I doctored with our family physician and he finally said he could not understand my case, so I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound. After I had taken the first bottle I could see that I was getting better. I took several bottles of the Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sannaive Wash and I am entirely cured of my ailments. You may publish this letter if you wish."—Mrs. MARY SHERMAN, Route 2, Lake, Mich.

There is one fact women should consider and that is this. Women suffer from irregularities and various forms of weakness. They try this and that doctor, as well as different medicines. Finally they take Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound, and Mrs. Sherman's experience is simply another case showing the merit of this well-known medicine.

If your family physician fails to help you and the same old troubles persist, why isn't it reasonable to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

A Laundry Service Within Every Woman's Means --

It is here for you in this Family Service we offer.

What is most disagreeable on wash-day? Isn't it the mussiness of wash water, the steam of boilers and tubs, the lifting and hauling?

And it's of that we relieve you—at a cost truly moderate.

We take your family bundle, wash it sweetly clean in soothingly soft waters and billowy, glistening suds; and rinse it many times in more water sparklingly pure.

Next we daintily iron the flat pieces; the things like bath towels we dry softly and fluffily—they need no ironing and other pieces that require it, we starch and make ready for you to iron in your own home.

In a word, we do all the toilsome, mussy work of washday, and leave for you only the milder, pleasanter task of ironing the lighter pieces.

It's a truly economical service within the means of every woman—we're sure you'll like it immensely.

Telephone, we'll welcome an opportunity to tell you more about it.

CURWENSVILLE

In giving "Reminiscences" before the members of the C. H. S. Alumni Association at the annual banquet Mrs. H. J. Barrett, of Hollidaysburg, Pa., seems to have stirred the old school spirit by mixing plenty of new names with the old along with plenty of fact. The Progress publishes this poem through the request of a number of the members of the Association.

Mrs. Barrett, who is best known in Curwensville as "Miss Mary" Reese-man, class of '87, gets her material from contact both as a student back in the days of Arnold's Hall and "Excelsior" and as one of the successful wielders of the so-called birch, having been Assistant Principal in the High School for some years.

REMINISCENCES

By MRS. H. J. BARRETT
Oh! Many and many a year ago
In this little town so gay
There stood a school house by the road—

'Twas built of logs and clay.
The windows of greased paper made,
The chimney deep and wide,
While rough hewn benches ranged themselves

Close to either side.
The master within laid down the law
Of readin' and 'ritin' and 'rithmetic,
Manners and habits and all things good

Taught to the tune of a hickory stick.
John Irvin, in eighteen thirty one.
Donated a piece of ground
On which was erected an academy

The finest to be found.
The academy became a public school
In a few years after this;
And General Patton was first to teach.

When teaching was such bliss.
'Twas here that Learning held full sway,
And Ignorance put to flight,
For General Patton a master was

And sowed the seed of light.
The seed sprang up and grew apace
As did the village fine;
And soon beheld three crowded rooms—

And one of them was mine.
The teacher's name was Nannie
Bard—
How many here remember?

Or does going back so far as that,
Recall some bleak December?
Miss Nannie changed her name quite soon,
Then next came Miss Laporte—

We learned to read and write and spell,
With arithmetic good sport.
There pass before us in grand review
Many and many faces—

Miss McQuade who turned over her knee,
The boy who jumped the traces.

Bailey and Pentz and R. A. Z.,
Mrs. Sloss, too, we see in the row,
Weaver and Gregory—the finest of men—

One after another they come and they go.
These teachers were steady and tried and true,
About them was nothing shoddy;

For each left his imprint upon the young mind
As well as upon the young body.
For in the olden days of a lively past,

The birch rod had full right
But we thrived on it in great content;
As witness me this night.
The old times are gone, alas! alas!

And with them the rod, alack!
No more do we hear the music sound
Of whackety, whackety, whack.
The old school house on Walnut street

Many a tale could tell
Of all the jolly youngsters there—
Of many a beau and belle.
Do you recall our nicknames?

Oh! Weren't they just fine?
There was "Quaker" Moore and
"Rusty" too.
And "Turnips" Gates in line.

There were "Doc" and "Keg" and
"Flop"
Liked by all the town;
There was also our "Bun" Leidy

And likewise "Stiney" Brown.
How many remember Addie
For whom "George Addie" was named?

How many remember "Cropsey"
Who as a farmer was famed?
There were "Nig" and "Bill" and
"Toff" and "Joe"

Each answering to his name
And these to us were greater
Than any of highest fame.
And many, many other names

Do we recall with glee,
As we think back on the olden times
That are no more to be.
We worked, we played, we squabbled,

We studied and we grew;
Then one glad day we entered
A fine stone building new.
Here was our first high school,

In all the land the best;
Where the wicked always trembled
And the weary ne'er could rest.
The vision comes more clearly now

Of faces loved so well,
And memory recalls a happy past
Of which no tongue can tell.
And the face of one is a Weaver—

A Weaver grand and true,
Who moved the shuttle and wove the thread,
As a master of minds can do.
And he had a Dyer to help him

Make the pattern bright and clear.
So that the fame of his workmanship
Has spread both far and near.
And here the face of a man

Who wielded the mighty pen,
Who kept the machinery moving,
Furnishing food for the minds of men
This man was always young with us

And ever full of fun—
This man—this mighty writer—
Was the great and good Thompson.
The very first classes were wonders

Greater than any beside;
For we did big things with little—
Never drifted with the tide.
We didn't have an Opera House,

We showed in the town hall,
Kept for such purposes
By the father of Samuel Paul.
We didn't have class colors,

And yet we were quite bright,
There wasn't even a class yell
Nor yet class flowers in sight.
We furnished our own bright colors,

All fun and jollity.
What we lacked in numbers,
We made up in quality.
Our first alumni banquet

Was surely very classy;
One girl even suggesting
That we get to it "enmasse"
The very first class was the wisest—

They knew of dangers galore,
So they had a Bovy to warn them,
Amid the storm's wild roar.
And those who followed were Orvis

Kerns,
And Harriet Crouch, so jolly;
There were Alice and May and George K. too,

And her whose name was Molly
There was Samuel H. and Katie
Whom later we called Tate—
There were the pioneers of High

School
And for others set the gait.
Each graduate of earlier days
Had a brave undaunted heart

As he blazed the trail for you and me
And bravely played his part.
My mind goes back to "Eighty seven"

And I think of Harry D—
Who always jollied us along
With speeches of great glee;
And S. Bird Kirk, so supple,

And dainty, Susan Bard,
And big, broad shouldered Crate,
Who studied—oh! so hard;
Of Gertrude Moore, both tall and fair,

Of Abner, Jack and Nan—
Tear from my heart these memories?
You never, never can.
In the days of long ago

When Knowledge with us had weight
And power became too Numerous
We measured by the Crate.
But we were never satisfied

With learning and with lore
For when they that we had our fill,
We always cried for Moore.
Ah, who are those before me

That nod and smile so bright?
Are these the Bards of olden fame,
Who sang of truth and might?
Here is a face that calls to mind,

Many a pleasant scene,
Reminding one of the old adage,
'A new broom sweeps quite clean'
A happy crowd comes into view,

Swept on by a merry gale.
The Daisies fair of "Ninety-three"
That crowd each Hill and Dale
Two "Dole"-ful faces next I see

They are upon my soul;
But how can they be otherwise.
When their very name is Dole
And Mary and Alex and George,

So laughing and jolly, dear sir,
We always laughed with them, when ever they went.
For each was a "Whittaker"

And now sweet Memory softly rolls
The thread of thought along.

Recalling dimly to my mind
A half forgotten song;
"Excelsior, Excelsior!"
The sweet and glad refrain

And "Excelsior" the song
From mountains unto main
Arrayed in royal purple,
Sweet modest faces come;

The dainty little "Violets" smile
And pass me one by one.
"O, Columbia the Gem of the Ocean",
Sang the class of "Ninety-Two".

"Great Scott," cried "Ninety Seven",
We're "Victors" over you.
So these faces crowd before me
A jolly, good, old line—

Robinson, Rorabaugh, Jenkins,
And R. K. Way, so fine.
Kittelberger, Kirk and Bigler,
McDowell and Humphrey, too.

Bloom, McNaull and Benson,
All pass in grand review.
I often think of Isaac—
How he peeped his candy all,

Then generously handed it over
To poor little Wilbur Wall.
And also I think of Douglass
Who often proved the goat;

And because it rimes so readily
I think of friends named Schrot.
I'd like to tell you all
That memory doth disclose,

But time will not permit us
As on its flight it goes.
There are things in this reunion
That make us mighty glad.

There are other things to think of
That bring a feeling sad
In the dear old lovely days
Of a happy, happy past

Friendships were formed
That forever more shall last
But the hand of time has scattered
These old friends very far;

And some of these—our dear ones—
Have quietly crossed the bar.

There are Alice and Nan and Abner.
Of whom we think tonight.
They just dropped out of Life's hard
School.

To enter God's School of Light.
Some of us are getting bald
And some are growing white
But in our hearts we're just as young

As those youngsters here tonight.
Fair as the morning
Are these faces that I see;
Blithe are their merry hearts,

Happy, light and free!
Gay are the songs they sing
A joyous glad refrain
Till even the sportive echoes

Answer again and again.
Then here's to the health and happiness
Of the class of '22

Who with beauty, health and gayer
Combine other virtues true.
May they fight life's battles bravely
May true success theirs be

These happy, smiling faces—
The last that come to me.
Oh! dear old friends and school mates
Let us cherish our happy past

And go on to fight more bravely
For our times are going fast.
And when our work is ended
And we cross the swelling tide

May we greet each dear companion
Safe on the other side
